The Trumpet

With this issue of the Trumpet we inaugurate the 1946-47 subscription campaign. The staff for next year has not yet been selected, but it seems best to get the drive underway immediately.

The Trumpet must rely on two sources of income for its funds. One is the returns from advertisements, and the other is the money paid for subscriptions. In the past, the Trumpet has been a good business proposition and has not made any debts. This has been another year of financial success. We have over 100 subscribers and enough advertisers to fulfill our contract and cover the cost of publishing, at least for the present four-page editions.

No matter who handles the publication next year, it would seem to be very desirable to put out a six-page edition every two weeks. This would entail a higher cost of publishing. We would not be desirable to increase the advertising space to cover the cost, for then the benefit of the additional pages would be minimized. Instead, we must seek help elsewhere.

The resources, as yet untapped to any sizable degree, must come from the friends of Wartburg throughout the midwest and any scattered alumni and backers elsewhere. The subscription rate of the Trumpet will not exceed the present rate of $1.25 per year. What we would like is to have the parents of every one of the potential student body enter a subscription. Your sons and daughters do not want to send their paper home to you. They want to keep it for themselves, and yet they want you to be able to read about them.

Every member of the illustrious alumni of Wartburg should be a loyal subscriber. Our paper, in comparison to other college newspapers, occupies an unusually large amount of space to alumni news. Every Luther League in the midwest should subscribe to the Trumpet. Young people want to know about the school they are going to attend. Many members of the ALC want to read about their church college and the activities of its campus. We need subscribers! Why not help us out?

Hilmer Writes

It has come as a welcome surprise to learn that Dr. John Hilmer, pastor of our department of Christianity and Philosophy, has completed a book which is now being published. This is a complete study of the Scriptures from Genesis to Revelation for the use of the junior high school student. The writer has carefully and thoroughly examined the Book of Zephaniah and has drawn much profit from his keen analysis. Carefully, the author approaches the sacred Word by presenting the history of the Bible from the original writer to the modern translation. Once he has successfully implanted this information in the mind of the student, he continues by briefly discussing "Bible Lands and People." From this point on we are led through the Old Testament by glorious steps which lead up to the glorious presentation of "The Gospel of the Kingdom," a study of the writings of the apostles.

As we enter the Revelation, we read, "We have walked through this house of God and have stood before the door to the last room. We see the word 'Revelation' written over it."

We are now in possession of a splendid Biblical study for the junior high school. The author is a man who is eminently qualified to help those who are starting in the study of the Bible. This student feels that this presentation is ideal for the catechetical class of every church for it simply but explicitly handles the high-spots of the Scripture in such a manner that it is as if to leave no doubt in the minds of its readers. It is to be hoped that pastors and laymen throughout the church recognize the great worth which can be found in this small, convenient volume and put it to the use of educating God's little children.

God Works

As this is being written, only a few days have elapsed since a beautiful display of the Aurora Borealis, more popularly known as the Northern Lights, "These mysterious phenomena are attributed to a group of sun spots which scientists have termed 'really centers of great cyclonic storms near the sun, radiating electrical particles into space and interfering with the earth's magnetic lines of force.'" As we watch these beautiful awe-inspiring occurrences, we are reminded that all radio communication on a commercial basis is cut off and that the time being, and many other activities are hampered. What does it all mean?

It has just been announced that great floods are sweeping the Pacific coast, causing havoc and havoc. Entire cities have been buried under a deluge of water; and the damage runs into staggering amounts. It is not this let's duty to explain why these fearful things happen, but it reminds one that even as we talk about man's power, we must remember that he has created the atomic bomb, he is humbled by these great manifestations of nature's phenomena. The great apostle Paul seeing such occurrences told at his time, and with the eye of faith in the future, clearly states, "For we know that the world is in constant travail and travail in pain." Romans 8:22. It is a fact that throughout the world we are constantly witnessing great upheavals of nature and physical catastrophes occur at an ever increasing rate. We are not going to argue the matter of God's will at this point, but God is the omnipotent force, whose hand can, if He so wishes, halt or halt any activity in

Husbands

(A Little Girl's Essay) Husbands is the people thirty years marries, and see always wishes that she hadn't picked out the one and die but I don't know why, because husbands all look alike to me.

My mamma says that husbands is like the thing that you buy on the bargain table. They look fine and good at first, you feel like you'll die if you don't get the one and you have your eyes set on one, and you fight with another woman for it and are ready to pull her hair and scratch her face to get it, but after you get it and take it home with you, it looks like dirty rags.

Husbands is very kind and polite to strange women and they laugh themselves most to death when the pretty slim young ladies all joke, but when their wives are forty years old and are gotten fat husbands are grumpy and when their wives tell a funny story all they say is "Huh."

I guess husbands is the smartest people in the world and know the most because they sit up all night and read the paper, and never waste any time looking for their wives.

These husbands is a kind of fish, because I heard some ladies say Miss Susie Jones was fishing for Mr. Brown, but they didn't think she'd hook him, and when she said "I've got him," they were sick, and that if they wanted more of them would ever get married.
There used to be a great many husbands, and you could go out and kill a buffalo for breakfast, but every year they got fewer and fewer, and they don't roam the plain anymore, and soon there won't be any more husbands and husbands left except those in cartivity.

Most ladies is got only one husband, but the ladies that have married and has been a few years as Reno or over to Paris, some there has a collection of husbands.

There are two kinds of husbands. A good husband is a man that gives you plenty of money to go shopping with, and goes down town to work every morning at eight o'clock and doesn't come home until six, and a husband that makes his wife buy the one that makes his wife buy things on a pill, so he can see how she spent the money, and who sneezes sleeping around the kitchen seeing how the cook pares the potato peels, and who stays at home all day.

A husband is a useful animal to have around the house, and pays the bills, I am going to have a husband when I am grown up.

Poetry Corner

Reverie
Down by the meadow Not so far away
Is an old enchanted cottage Where often I did play.

It wasn't much to look at—A quaint and queer old;
But to me it was a rare old
From the many grumpy old.

Twice here I came to ponder When troubles creased my brow Like the farmer plowing his fields
As he walks behind his plow.

The trees their shade did offer
As I sat upon the top Of my own beloved cottage
To think of sweet Joseph.

Joseph and I were lovers His and as true could be Till fate came up and took him Far, far away from me.

But I shall never forget The love that once we shared Grieving, ever grieving That we not better loved.

Now time is passing swiftly Like water upon the sea And soon we'll be united And have our rest in peace.

But till that time is dawning I'll sit and ponder here At my own beloved cottage That to me is very dear.

MY CHURCH

It stands down in the valley Half hidden by maple trees That are red and gold in autumn And rustle in the breeze.

A little streamlet nearby Flows slowly, as if to stay And worship with the faithful, That come to my church to pray.

And near by in the shadow Where pines the vigil do keep,
There is a quiet path to keep Where the weary pilgrims sleep.

You may not see its beauty,
But to me it is most fair.
Its view makes deep reverence,
To know that God is there.

Stella Buhr

A Voice Out of Germany The voices of the children are heard in the street Because there is little or nothing to eat.

The infants and old ones are dying like flies Over there in the gutter my youngest one lies.

Our homes were destroyed by war's ruthless track No working can bring our beloved ones back.

Our people are dying by authority's hand I seek in vain to turn whether plus the long night.

You sit at the head in great luxury you lie, Your children are happy, while ours must die.

—Lu Vonne Heiken

Father
By the light of the old gas lamp at ever
In his favorite rocking chair I see my father's smiling and smoking.

While reading the paper with care, His glasses are pinched on his little old nose.

And he squints as he reads the days news,
His sighs and grunts with utter drama.

At the methods some people use, Silly and stupidly his old head tosses,
And he rests his chin on his breast.

The evening paper falls down to the floor,
And Father takes a short little rest.

Who can forget Gethsemane, the sacred garden at the foot of Mount Olivet where our Savior in great agony of soul knowing and

PROMISING BALL SEASON TO OPEN SOON

The opening game of the 1946 diamond slate is with Luther at Decatur on Saturday, April 13. Practice games have been arranged with Iowa State Teachers' College before the opening game. Coach Rosta is worried about the hitting ability of the players and the Knighs' defense. The Knighs are confident with the attack the boys will win some games. With the return of Rosta's all-captain have become stronger, and the race for the title should prove interesting.

Ah, Spring!

What is the main theme of poets upon the arrival of spring? Is it so attractive or so appealing? Why do these poets write their emotional hearts in such glowing words and phrases that beautifully describe this one little word—"spring"? What prompts the young poet to call on the charming coed? Can there be something about the word "spring" so important that certain fellows always escort certain girls to class, during the day? Or have these lads the reason for all this. Do you ("you" refers to the poor unfortunate weaver, if there is one) know that Wartburg is richer than Alca Zahm. This 16-pound spiritual leader of India, who has received the 34 1/2 pounds of diamonds. Since we didn't want to be surprised, we waited a diamond which nine men can play baseball. A student and a baseball player are much the same. A student may strike once or twice by not going to class (according to Dr. Hiltner), but when he strikes the third time, he gets put out.

It being very much interested in baseball, decided to try my luck in playing the game. Wanting to do my very best, I made all preparations. Oh, my, my—what a lot of things it takes to be a baseball player. Everything, I was determined to go ahead.

The very first thing that I did was to go into the woods to find some "pitch". On the way I picked up a "pitch" to kill a "bat", but all I did was "hit the dirt". A farmer came and "dusted me out". Being very sympathetic, the farmer permitted me to take his "piece of iron" (I killed it with a "pitch") and offered me a "pitch" to carry it in, but I said that a "pitch" "bat" would be sufficient.

The farmer's wife was also very kind, for she gave me a "piece of iron" to kill a "bat", but all I did was "hit the dirt". A farmer came and "dusted me out". Being very sympathetic, the farmer permitted me to take his "piece of iron" (I killed it with a "pitch") and offered me a "pitch" to carry it in, but I said that a "pitch" "bat" would be sufficient.

Little Johnny, not wanting to forgetten, gave me his "pitch" "bat", but all I did was "hit the dirt". A farmer came and "dusted me out". Being very sympathetic, the farmer permitted me to take his "piece of iron" (I killed it with a "pitch") and offered me a "pitch" to carry it in, but I said that a "pitch" "bat" would be sufficient.

I thanked them for this enjoyable "pitch" and started for "home". I had very good luck. I had a "pitch" to kill a "bat", but all I did was "hit the dirt". A farmer came and "dusted me out". Being very sympathetic, the farmer permitted me to take his "piece of iron" (I killed it with a "pitch") and offered me a "pitch" to carry it in, but I said that a "pitch" "bat" would be sufficient.

The spring sports were greeted with sunshine by Old Man Weather as practice was begun three weeks ago. The diamond was late out and the track checked. Yes, baseball and track compete the scheduled competitive spring sports at Wartburg.

Dean Rosta is leading the twenty-two baseball candidates in their drills on North Field, while Dr. Hiltner is putting the tinkersmen through their paces at the city track. "Rosta" has scheduled eight games for the Wartburg nine—four being played at Waverly. The track squad will participate in three meets—a triangular meet at Luther with Luther and Upper Iowa, a sextangular at Central

Track Schedule

April 13—Triangular at Luther with Luther and Upper Iowa May 3—Sextangular at Central with Central, Penn, Iowa Wesleyan, Parsons and Simpson May 10, 11—Conference Track and Field Meet at Simpson

1946 Baseball Schedule

April 13—Luther at Decatur April 17—Simpson and at Indiana (double-header) April 25—Upper Iowa University at Fayette May 1—Upper Iowa University at Waverly (single day)
May 7—Simpson at Waverly (double-header)
May 13—Luther at Waverly

Knights Meet
State Teachers
In Practice Game

The Wartburg Knights' nine met their first opposition last Tuesday when they scrimmaged Iowa State Teachers College on Luther's diamond. Although the Knights were defeated, they made a fine impression in the early innings of the game. The nine full hurling of Ted Olmstead, the Knights trailed 1-0 at the end of three innings. The Knights slumped slightly in the following innings with Marvin Peterson and Ed Broese doing the throwing. The Knights' infield worked smoothly in the opening innings, but later, under pressure, it showed the necessity of improvement. Bill Hughes did an outstanding job behind the plate. The outfielders covered their positions well and will improve through experience. The Knights proved weak in hitting, but that was to be expected during the first test. In all, the team showed no defects that experience, confidence, team work and team spirit cannot correct.

THE BOOK
The Book of Books this text is called, Composed of words that fan
The fire of Holy Spirit.
The small, dim mind of man.
It has no fancy rills or lace,
No make-up or no date.
The source of our redeeming grace,
Director of our fate.
The authors of this wondrous book,
By Holy Ghost inspired, My dwell in peace with men whose souls Were by their pattern fired.
The words contained in this one book,
No other book can rival.
I was writ by God for man to read, This Holy Book, the Bible.

Breakfast? -- No, Thanks!

Clang! Clang! Clang! rang the 6:45 bell. Slowly my senses came back to me, after having explored the black and distant world of night. My eyes slowly opened and I was conscious. Managing to pick myself up to a sitting position, I surveyed my room, but all to no avail, for my eyelids were continually sliding shut. I reached down into the ash tray and found, to my good fortune, two matches. I used them to pry my eyes open, but that which I had not anticipated happened. My eyelids, revolting, broke the sticks and once again I experienced utter darkness with the tale of dreams beckoning me. Clang! Clang! Clang! blared the 6:55 bell. Realizing that I had five minutes in which to make it to breakfast, I kicked back the covers and slid down the closet door which stood conveniently at my service. Striking the floor with the lower portion of my anatomy, I bounced to my feet and jumped into my trousers which stood stiffly in the center of the room. With the speed of light I tucked in the upper of my pajamas which had at one time been those which Uncle Lucy's fifth wife's great grandfather brought with him from Sing Sing. (That is a medical school located on the coast of New York.) While slipping into my slippers and brushing my teeth, I managed to comb my golden tresses. Having turned off the light, I stepped before the mirror and gazed into my murky depths. In a vain attempt to see my face, assuming that my original beauty was still there, I pulled open the door and dashed down the hall. Upon reaching the stairs, which extended to the floor below, I missed the first step and took the rest of them in one stride. At the bottom of the stairs I picked myself up and opened the door bounded through the closed door to the dining hall. By the time I had closed the dining hall door behind me, not only my hip-waist hands, but also my perspiring smile had turned to a deep purple. There I stood a feelingsless, shapeless, sightless mass of protoplasm. What had I gained by this courageous venture? A bowl of cereal? No! A glass of milk? What good were they to me? The extra hour that I would have gained from sleeping through breakfast would have done me more good. So I awoke me, when a waiter or dishwasher advises you not to come to breakfast, he is thinking only of your welfare. The moral to this story is—"DON'T COME TO BREAKFAST, but don't let anyone coerce you into staying away." Published on behalf of the A.W.W.C.

I long to walk met a garden of flowers With a maid who is sweeter than May And list to the lapping of clear blue waters,
And for soothing voice through each day.
Her face is a vision of beauty,
Which shines from the goodness
All the countless stars of heaven agree,
That she is mine to woo to wed.
Ted Stenblock

It Is Finished
The blackness of the Pit availed round
The swirling rough-hewn cross.
The gamblers staved without a sound,
As cubes showed neither gain nor loss.
The priests, who lingered, felt the chill
As God's Son faded in the dusk.
They who had held, became the still Beholders of Reverence—a hush.
His Mother and Beloved One Along the faithful of His Band, Were there; and knew not He had won.
Their tears flowed down upon the sand.
Above the stillness of that gloom
A shout, "Pariteria est!"
The world turned back to give Him room, Who, in Himself, us all had blessed.
